How to get Code V

To get Code V you will need to pick up an application from Ruth (IN THE ACADEMICS OFFICE)

On the Application form for Code V you will put in your name, your email, and put a check mark on Code V.

Then Proceed to fill out the rest of the questions, but you will notice there will be a blank portion for the hardware host ID on the top left corner. To obtain the ID that will be unique for your device you will go directly to *http://optics.synopsys.com/support/support-host-id.html and download the GetHostID.exe

*This site and instructions are also found at the bottom of the application form

After you properly fill out the form you will hand it in to Ruth in the Academics Office.

It will take a few days for Synopsys to get to your application and send you an email. You will first get an email asking to electronically sign a license agreement. After the signature goes through you will get another email that will have a link to download the license text and the Code V executable program. Save the license file somewhere easy to access.

When you first run Code V the program will ask you the location of the license file, and if you follow all the directions properly you should have Code V on your computer.

If you have any questions feel free to contact me at alonzoe@email.arizona.edu or ask your fellow peers.